DANIELSON

Approximately ten tons of equipment for the service battery of 1924 artillery located here will arrive from Hartford by motor trucks today, according to information received over the telephone Wednesday by Captain F. O. Armstrong, Captain Armstrong was not informed as to the exact nature of the equipment that is coming through, but he believes that it will be varied and probably will include uniforms, shoes, underwear, overalls and other such goods. Less than a month remains in which to completely equip the company for its tour of duty at Camp Devens, where the command will remain for about two weeks.

Here buyers from Iowa all through this section gathered at Kennedy's stable on Furnace street on Wednesday to attend an auction sale of 26 head of green, brown and black horses and some harnesses and other such equipment. There was lively interest throughout the sale, which was conducted by Walter Redburn. Old time horsemen in the crowd said that the horses were being "shown up" and that horse talk and general sale day atmosphere was a reminder of days long ago when the day before the auction the buyers would be seen largely in the transportation field.
